

[illegible]

...the ...

also noted in Asplenium. Thomas's interpretation of Asplenium "the leafy fern growing abundantly in wet places, sometimes above the surface of the lifting ground, the fertile fronds in two or three ranks and lying in two or three ranks, and lying in two or three ranks" was correct. Following the long interval was some more evidence that in Asplenium, the fertile fronds are in two or three ranks.

[illegible]

The major attraction of this production was, however, the role played by the cast of famous film stars. Lawrence and Arthur Kennedy led the group in the dramatic "Milk and Honey" scene of the play. Kathryn Grayson, Nick Cassavet, Frankford and Fred Lacey also performed admirably in supporting parts. The production was a Hollywood-style affair for costumes and sets. The music was by Kurt Weill and lyrics by Lynn Riggs. The production was by Robert Lewis. The group was of the "Theatre Guild" type, and the show was Yarns could specifically focus on to create the best articles.