

Remembering Safdar by Manohar Khushalani

Remembering Safdar

CULTURE COMMENT
Manohar Khushalani

Having been associated with Savitri Dutt from last century, my memories of her have faded as equally as it has faded for me. I had met her once in 1971 when I had just moved to Delhi. Our first meeting was in a restaurant. She was then about 70 years old. I had just moved to Delhi and was looking for a place to live. She was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. She was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. She was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place.

An illustration of Safdar is seen by all those

The memory of Safdar is still alive in the minds of those who knew him. He was a man of many talents. He was a writer, a dancer, and a performer. He was a man of many talents. He was a writer, a dancer, and a performer. He was a man of many talents. He was a writer, a dancer, and a performer.

by exhibiting them in their homes and bringing the collective spirit. After the 1947 partition, Safdar moved to Delhi. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place.

to exhibiting them in their homes and bringing the collective spirit. After the 1947 partition, Safdar moved to Delhi. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place.

problems of the partition. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place. He was then living in a small apartment in Connaught Place.